Stores Miss $1.5M in Stamps

By CHAZY DOWALIBY
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — Ulster County stores are losing about $1.5 million in retail business each year because half of the 14,000 persons eligible for federal food stamps are not signed up for the program.

The state department of social services estimates 7,200 more county residents probably qualify to receive the added-cash-value food stamps, aimed at helping low-income families improve their diets.

Each one of those 7,200 persons could be spending an average of $17 in federal money on extra groceries each month.

Poor administration of the program by the state and county governments has been blamed for the underuse of food stamps throughout New York.

An Assembly subcommittee has estimated only half of all eligible New Yorkers get food stamps because the counties have failed to carry out their responsibilities to publicize the program and make signing up as easy as possible.

Ulster has now has about 7,000 participants.

Half of them get other forms of public assistance as well, but just as many are working families who, because of high living costs, qualify for the bonus stamps.

Food stamps are coupons redeemable at grocery stores.

For example, a family may be allowed to buy $100 of the federal coupons for $60 cash. They then go to a supermarket and buy $100 worth of food.

The grocer receives $100 from the government when he redeems the coupons, and the family has gained a bonus of $40 in food they would not otherwise have been able to buy.

A report released in February by the Assembly subcommittee on nutrition programs indicates that about 8.5 per cent of the state's population is getting food stamps — about half the total number eligible.

County Wants Its Space Back

Mystery Lease Puts City Lab In Limbo

KINGSTON — The legislature is looking to get out of what it thinks is a lease with Kingston Hospital giving City Lab space at a county-owned building at 400 Broadway.

The hitch is no one is sure just where that lease is, what it says, or if it even exists at all.

Half of the building, the former Tumor Clinic, is owned by the county. The other half, which had been separated by a wall down the middle, is owned by the City of Kingston, which operates City Lab.

Over the past few years, a number of rooms have been leased for $1 a year to non-government concerns like the Cancer Society and the hospital. But now, says Mental Health Director Ralph Golding, all of that space and more is needed to house his ever-expanding, state-funded programs.

Golding and the legislature building committee were under the impression City Lab got it's foot in the door (or, to be more specific, through the wall) because Kingston Hospital had given it the okay to use some its leased space in the county building.

The hospital now says it has nothing to do with the lab and uses its own three rooms once a week for a cancer examination clinic.

The lab says it has an "unwritten agreement with the county" for use of one office and some storage space and that it is asking the county for more room to meet its needs.

Golding says City Lab has broken through walls on two floors, now occupies about eight rooms on three floors, and never so much as asked for permission to use an extra broom closet.

"As near as I can make out," says building committee chairman George Sisti, "we have a five year lease with the hospital that is due to run out at the end of this month."

Sisti's committee wants to recommend the agreement not be renewed.

"It's not a question of the hopsital's use," says Golding,"but we were under the impression that the Lab had been given permission from the hospital to use some space."

Kingston Hospital deputy administrator Mary Finger asserts "we had nothing to do with that...the only thing we do in the buildign is operate a clinic every Thursday where a doctor from Memorial Cancer Hospital in New York City come up and examines patients here."

MARKETBASKET

Fruit And Vegetables Jump 7 Per Cent

KINGSTON — Food prices in Kingston were up again last week, up .2 per cent after a brief decline during the previous seven-day period.

The cost of feeding a family of four was priced at $68.33, according to figures released by the Consumer Information Service of the District Attorney's office.

The same 41-item sampling of foods cost $68.16 during the week ending March 12.

Despite a 3.4 per cent decrease in the meats and fish caetgory and a smaller decrease in dairy products, increase in the remaining five food categories caused the slight shift upward in price.

Fresh fruits and vegetables showed the largets single increase, jumping a full 7 per cent. Lettuce and bananas were among the foods showing the largest price jumps.

The market basket value of the week was found in the meats and fish category.

After a one week respite from increased prices, the market basket coffee price rose from $2.72 to $2.69 for a one pound can.

Market basket information for the week was based on a survey of at least three area supermarkets.

World in Brief

Ransom Demanded By Mexican Police

MATAMOROS, Mexico (UPI) — Lee Greer, son of coal operator Perry L. Greer of Lexington, Ky. was stopped last week at the border and held for ransom by police who claimed they found a small bag of marijuana in his car. Greer denied the marijuana was his.

The elder Greer flew to Mexico and gave the men $14,000, but was told they wanted another $6,000 before returning the car, although they let him take his son.

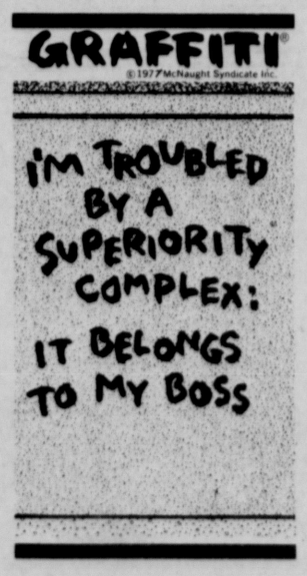
Philipine Junkshop Falls After Quake

MANILA, The Philippines (UPI) — The wall of a suburban junkshop, weakened by a strong earthquake Saturday, collapsed Sunday, killing two persons and injuring 20 others, the Philippine Red Cross said.

The latest casualty report brought to three the number of deaths from the tremor that measured an intensity of seven on the Rossi-Forel Scale of nine in the northern Philippines and six in Manila. The injured numbered 30.

Red Cross authorities said Monday one of the 160 aftershocks so far recorded apparently toppled the wall of a junkshop at nearby Caloocan Town.



Byrd Is Convert On Public Financing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd says he is a "convert" to the idea of public financing of congressional elections, but doubts it could be enacted soon enough to apply to the 1978 races.

"You're talking to a convert on this," the West Virginia Democrat told reporters Saturday, adding that he had once voted against providing federal funds to congressional campaigns.

He said the handling of campaign funds was "a major factor in public distrust" of Congress and that the pressure for public financing is growing.

Medicaid Kickbacks Scored by Senators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a letter, Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Peter Domenici, R-N.M., told congressional colleagues, "It is apparent to us that kickbacks continue to be a rampant business practice in Medicaid despite efforts by the Congress to curb this practice."

"Only one case has been successfully prosecuted under provisions of the 1972 Social Security amendment ... which makes offering, soliciting or receiving kickbacks a misdemeanor punishable by up to a year in jail and a $10,000 fine," they wrote Saturday.

Fuel-Saving School Dates Raise Alarm

Parents Oppose New Calendar

By ROB BORSELLINO
Freeman staff

KINGSTON— The controversial fueling-saving school calendar proposed for next year is expected to be tabled for further study when the N.Y. Board of Regents meets this week.

The Kingston School Board opposes the plan.

The proposed calendar is designed to conserve energy in the wake of this winter's natural gas shortage by opening schools Sept. 1 through June 30, with a five week recess between Dec. 24 and Jan. 29.

Theodore Black, chancellor of the Board of Regents, said he was deluged with protests, about 75 to 150 opposition letters a day, getting "more mail on this than any other issue, including busing."

Locally, the Kingston Board of Education went on record against the plan earlier this month. It cited the fact that students would have to be reacclimated to schoolwork after the long winter break, among other reasons.

The board also noted Ulster County did not suffer energy problems as severely as other areas of the state this winter.

Barbara Schoonmaker, head of the Kingston PTO President's Council, called the proposal "a very ridiculous thing to consider."

" The idea is based only on energy conservation and no consideration was given to the children and the effect it will have on family life," said Schoonmaker.

"Many businesses and functions are set up around the school calendar and the summer gives the district time to upgrade the buildings and it gives teacher time to upgrade their credentials."

Among the problems Black cited were the handling of non-academic employes during the recess, disrup-

John Pike Will Re-Design Downtown Too

KINGSTON— Woodstock artist John Pike, designer of Kingston's uptown urban renewal project, has been hired to re-design the building facades in the city's lower Broadway corridor.

Pike is expected to come up with a plan "that will be in keeping with the historical nature of the area," according to Community Development Director Ralph Marallo, who said close to half a million dollars in public and private funds will be spent in the downtown area in the coming months.

Community development funds will be used to upgrade the exterior of the buildings. The city will help property owners secure low interest federal loans to fix up inside.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig says he expects three per cent loans under Section 312 will be made available to the property owners. The city is now securing the services of a 312 loan specialist who will help property owners in planning and financiing interior rehabilitation.

"The plan is to preserve the many fine features of the existing building structures and to recapture the earlier neighborhood character of the area," said Koenig.

It'll Melt Your Heart Away

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Pet rocks move over!

An enterprising Buffalo firm has come up with another item designed to literally melt the hearts of thousands of nature lovers.

Allentown Industries is offering a special item to commemorate the Buffalo blizzard of 1977.

The souvenir includes a vial of liquified snow on a special commemorative stand, a gift card and a booklet of reminiscences from the past winter, which dumped 188 inches of the white stuff on New York's second largest city.

Birthday Party with Teeth in It

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD, England (UPI) — Firemen were summoned to the Oddfellows Arms pub to rescue Mrs. Gillian Richardson whose arm was stuck in a billiard table pocket.

They said she had been trying to retrieve her husband's false teeth, which fell in during a game to celebrate his birthday.

FALN Bombs Cause Minor Damage at FBI Building

NEW YORK (UPI) — Small bombs believed to have been planted by Puerto Rican terrorists caused minor damage early today to a building housing the FBI's headquarters and a bank note plant, police said.

A passerby was slightly injured by one of the explosions, which occurred at about 12:10 a.m., authorities said.

Police disclosed a note found in a telephone booth a little over half a mile from the FBI building said the bombs were planted by the Puerto Rican FALN organization.

The group, whose initials stand for Armed Forces of National Liberation, has claimed responsibility for a number of bombings in the last three years, including one at historic Fraunces Tavern which killed four persons and injured 53 others on Jan. 24, 1975.

The bombs today went off in a Whelan drug store in the FBI building on Manhattan's East Side and the American Bank Note plant in New York City's Bronx borough, a police spokesman said.

The spokesman said the drug store is on the ground floor of the FBI building, while the federal agency's headquarters are on the sixth floor.

An FBI spokesman said the bomb blew out the display window of the drug store. The blast started a small fire and caused some damage to the store, the spokesman said.

He said the shock of the explosion was felt in the FBI offices, but they were not damaged.

Police said Norman Leitman, 43, of Manhattan, was cut on the arm by flying glass when the bomb in the Whelan store went off as he was passing the building. He was treated at New York Hospital and released.

The explosion in the Bronx blew a hole a foot to 18 inches in diameter in the sidewalk where it was planted, and shattered about half the windows on that side of the bank note plant.

It was not clear why the bank note company, which prints currency for a number of small countries in various parts of the world, should have been a target of the FALN.

Beame Appoints Gay Activist

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Abraham Beame has appointed six persons to the city's Commission on Human Rights, including the first gay rights activist ever to serve on the commission.

Beame said Sunday he was making the appointments in keeping with his policy of choosing New Yorkers with "the widest range of backgrounds and communities that represent the city's unique diversity."

Among the appointees is Robert L. Livingston, a private investor and a member of the National Gay Task Force.

Other appointees include: Kenneth Drew, founder and publisher of a Queens weekly newspaper, the New York Voice; Beatrice Gordon, an American Jewish Congress leader; LeRoy E. Pagano, chairman of the Department of Business of the College of Staten Island; Victor Luis Robles, congressional aide in New York City to Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y.; and Helga Tanenbaum, a psychologist who is active in Jewish and community affairs.

Improved Heart Valve.. A Life Saving Imitation

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (UPI) — An improved artificial valve, created to mimic the action of natural valves in the heart, has been designed by a faculty member at Union College, according to a school spokesman.

The valve, called a hemofoil valve, was designed by J. Richard Shanebrook, professor of mechanical engineering at Union, and Michael F. Clune, a former Union student.

The new valve represents an improvement over current artificial valves in that it is streamlined to reduce the amount of turbulence after each closing of the valve, thereby reducing strain on the heart, Shanebrook said.

The valve is intended for use in replacing defective mitral valves located between the left atrium and left ventricle of the heart, he said. A Union research team was preparing to test the valve by implanting it in a dog.

As many as 30,000 people in the world each year might benefit from the invention, Shanebrook estimated.

Flood Aid Sought

ALBANY (UPI) — The Red Cross has urged Gov. Hugh Carey Sunday to ask President Carter for a federal disaster declaration for areas of New York which suffered recent flooding.

The Red Cross said Sunday their assessment and initial emergency assistance indicated more than 1,000 families were affected and could benefit from the provisions of such action.

A telegram to Carey was signed by Bryce Torrence, the organization's national director of disaster services.

Torrence, who was surveying Red Cross relief operations in 11 New York counties and areas of five other nearby states Sunday, said a presidential declaration would enable federal agencies to assist disaster victims with long term recovery needs such as major repair of homes, small business loans and other forms of assistance.

"The Red Cross wants families to be able to benefit from provisions of the Federal Disaster Relief Act of 1974, and we've already provided our statistics to the government to aid in their decision," Torrence said.

The Red Cross estimated at least 1,500 families could be affected by flooding touched off by recent heavy rains and melting snow in New York and other areas of the Northeast.

South Africa to Pressure Smith

WASHINGTON (UPI) — South Africa has offered to play a direct role in the Rhodesian negotiations by bringing pressure on the Smith regime and guaranteeing its "sincerity," according to diplomatic officials.

They say the South African offer to bring political and economic pressure against Smith is linked with another plan: a referendum inside Rhodesia within the next few months to determine a single, responsible spokesman for the Rhodesian blacks.

South African officials said a principal reason for the failure of earlier Geneva negotations was the lack of a unified black leadership among the four factions represented.

"If Ian Smith were to decide to capitulate today and were to send a letter to the other parties advising them of it, who would he send it to?

Congress Party's defeat sparks jubilation in New Delhi.

Indira Gandhi Is Dealt Huge Defeat

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was swept from power today in a resounding parliamentary election defeat and her Congress Party, which has ruled India since independence in 1947, trailed the opposition. A spokesman for Mrs. Gandhi said she would resign later today.

Hours after her defeat was announced, Mrs. Gandhi revoked the harsh and unpopular state of emergency which she imposed 21 months ago and which was largely credited for her downfall.

Official results for 286 of 540 parliamentary seats showed the Congress party won 111 and its allies 17, while the Janata party, an opposition coalition, held 140. The resnt went to a scattering of other parties.

Mrs. Gandhi polled 122,517 votes to 177,729 for her rival, Raj Narain, a Socialist lawyer, in her home district of Rae Bareli, seemingly laying to rest her party's slogan that "India is Indira and Indira is India."

Her controversial 30-year-old son Sanjay lost by 75,000 votes in a constituency adjoining hers. Both were defeated by Janata candidates.

A personal aide to the prime minister, H.Y. Sharada Prasad, said she would submit her resignation later in the day. He described her as "pretty cheerful" despite her loss.

Other party sources said they expected acting President B.D. Jatti to ask Mrs. Gandhi to remain in office and head a brief caretaker government until a new prime minister is sworn in.

V.B. Raju, a general secretary of the Congress party, said party officials would meet later in the day to select Mrs. Gandhi's replacement as leader of the party.

The party with the most parliament seats will form a government later in the week.

VANQUISHED: Mrs. Gandhi

Should the Congress party lose, the two leading candidates for prime minister would be Jagjivan Ram and Morarji Desai.

Ram, 68, led a rebellion within the Congress party last month and formed the Congress for Democracy Party that lined up with the opposition Janata Party. Desai, 81, has been a foe of Mrs. Gandhi's since he led a 1969 party revolt.

Both men were jailed under Mrs. Gandhi's emergency rule, which also imposed a strict press censorship and suspended civil liberties.

Popular anger at the measure had become the main issue in the election campaign. Her opponents billed the race as a choice between "democracy and dictatorship."

Other voter grievances included compulsory sterilizations and Sanjay Ghandi's growing influence in the government.

The campaign started with Mrs. Gandhi's surprise Jan. 18 decision to hold elections.

The opposition, fragmented in all previous elections, united speedily on the emergency issue and later Jagjivan's rebellious Congress party faction lined up with it.

Treasure Cave Probers Goldless but Encouraged

WHITE SANDS, N.M. (UPI) — It had been 16 years since Leonard Fiege was inside a large cavern in Victorio Peak searching for a legendary gold treasure.

He returned to the cave Sunday, but he didn't find the piles of gold bars he said he saw there on his last visit.

Fiege was one of three men, part of a search organized by Norman Scott, who crawled on their "bellies and backs" 320 feet into a domed room inside the small desert peak.

They found no treasure, but enough clues to get them to continue the search with heavy equipment.

"It is entirely different," Fiege said. "There are timbers in there now. It's all shored up."

Fiege, a retired Air Force captain, said he found stacks of gold bars in the peak, located on the White Sands Missile Range, in the late 1950s. He said the last time he was in the cave was 1961.

Fiege is one of many persons who have said they saw a treasure spotted by Milton E. "Doc" Noss in 1937. Scott has been hired by several of the claimants to conduct this 10-day search, which ends March 28.

After digging with shovels and crow bars for four hours Sunday, Fiege, Jerry Lee and Jack Hull crawled through the entrance of a fault for a 45-minute search just before nightfall.

Lee, a spelunker with Scott's Expeditions Unlimited, said someone had done a lot of work in the cave.

"There's even a campsite in there with a tea kettle, a No. 5 can that was used as a fire place to cook canned food — peas, beans — and one No. 5 can that still has about five sticks of dynamite and some old rotted fuse," Lee said.

"There's even a pair of red corduroy pants," he said.

A geophysicist, Lambert Dolphin of Stanford Research Institute, used ground-penetrating radar to verify locations of several faults in the peak.

Reports of the treasure date back to the 1500s when the area was visited by Spanish conquistadores traveling northward from Mexico. Among the more recent alleged discoverers of the gold were Noss and Joe Newman of El Paso, Tex., who said he was in the cavern in 1974.

Noss, who was shot and killed in 1949, had said he accidentally sealed the cavern while trying to clear some of the rocks away with dynamite. His widow, Ova, 80, is along on the search.

Newman said on his 1974 visit he and three other man sneaked inside the range after dark. He said his companions were discovered by soldiers on patrol but he hid inside a cave and escaped.

He also brought out a gold bar he said he found inside.

The Army permitted the current expedition but says even if gold is found, it cannot be removed until the claims are legally settled.

Cancer Agent Law Is Being Reviewed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The wash of criticism over the government's proposed ban on saccharin is prompting the Health, Education and Welfare Department to begin a close look at the the prime anti-cancer food protection law.

HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said the administration eventualy will make a recommendation to Congress on whether to change the so-called Delaney amendment's strict provisions, which forbid the presence in food of any cancer-causing substance once so identified.

Califano revealed the review Sunday during a television interview (NBC-TV's Meet the Press). Today a House Health subcommittee chaired by Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., begins lengthy hearings into the same subject in response to continuing outcries from members of Congress and the public.

Califano said that even though a review is going on "It's by no means clear whether a change in the law is warranted..."

"We will be making a recommendation on the Delaney amendment," he said of the law, noting that some critics have attacked it as a "knee jerk" provision.

The Food and Drug Administration, which on March 9 announced its intention to ban saccharin because of cancer in rats who were fed it, has said it welcomes a review of the Delaney amendment.

Herbert Ley, a former FDA commissioner, has said the law's strict either-or character should be changed to give FDA some flexibility to allow "safe" amounts of carcinogens to enter the food supply.

Some consumer activists, however, claim more such laws, not fewer, are needed. They contend neither FDA nor any other arm of government should be allowed to let cancer-causing materials enter the foodstream.

His arrest record goes back to 1969 in Schenectady, Loudonville, Balston Spa, and California.He served time in jails in Dutchess County and Balston Spa.

Hadden's record goes back to 1966 with arrests in Poughkeepsie and Kingston and Middletown. He has been previously charged with kidnaping, forgery, burglary, larceny, harassment, drug possession, rape and shoplifting. In 1975, he was sentenced to up to four years in state prison at Ossining.

Citizens Can Help Fight Crime

Dear Editor:

Writing as a concerned citizen, homeowner and taxpayer, I would like to take this means to publicly express my appreciation; first to Mr. Titus Sims, Minority Leader of the Common Council, and secondly to Detective Sgt. Joseph Feraca, Jr. for their anti-crime efforts on behalf of myself, my neighbors and all residents of the City of Kingston.

A goodly number of us did attend the meeting at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church on March 16 arranged by these individuals for the purpose of showing and discussing ways that every private citizen can help combat crime and protect private property at a time when burglaries of private residences is on a rapid increase.

To my knowledge, this is the first open meeting of this nature arranged by an alderman for not only those he represents but all of the residents of our city. Mr. Sims is to be highly commended for his dedicated concern and his willingness to do something about it.

The news media of our community who did publicize this meeting in advance of its taking place and to the few of the media that did attend are also to be commended. It was a shame more residents and other elected public officials in particular were not present to share in the discussions, and witness the frustrations of many present particularly with the laws as written today which in many cases offer a far greater degree of protection to the offender against society than to his victim

Detective Sgt. Feraca, I felt, gave an excellent presentation and those who did make this worthwhile meeting left it more greatly informed than before they came.

In closing I would urge all individuals and organizations to avail themselves of future programs of this nature, which I understand will be given throughout the cooperation of the Kingston Police Department.

CH Budget Plan Not so Hot

Dear Editor:

"Caveat Emptor"...let the buyer beware! There is a fox in the bush in the form of Central Hudson, ready to pounce on your hard earned dollars; truly a case of beating a dead horse.

Lest you be lulled into a sense of euphoria that our local utility has suddenly developed a conscience, forget it. The six month budget plan they are so generously offering you is simply a self protecting device, for they know only too well that it is better to wait six months for their money than to demand and get nothing at present.

Part of Central Hudson's scheme provides for automatic enrollment in their 12-month budget plan after the end of the special six month budget plan. This would be advantageous only to Central Hudson for it would provide them a greater pool of money on a monthly basis. Yes, they are merely prolonging the agony of horrendous electric bills because of the severe winter. If they really had the interest of the community at heart, they would issue a refund because of the excess profits they have enjoyed.

Utilities have admitted to the Public Service Commission windfall profits and, one in particular, Rochester Gas and Electric Co., has announced it will give refunds to customers. Francis Drake, Chairman of the Rochester utility said: "We've had tremendous cooperation from our customers and they are entitled to some consideration. We do not intend to retain those additional revenues at the expense of our customers, notwithstanding our legal right to do so."

How about it Central Hudson? Where do you stand???

Louisa May Understood Poverty

Dear Editor:

The welfare dispute raging through all levels causes me to think back to one of the most affecting scenes in literature as set forth in harrowing detail by Louisa May Alcott, who, it may surprise you to know, was as aware as any one that there is poverty and hardship everywhere.

One cold, frosty morning the little women, acting on a sudden and most laudable impulse, packed up their breakfast and carried it clear across town and over the tracks to a poor family who otherwise would have gone without breakfast, as well as lunch, afternoon tea, dinner and the usual bedtime snack of warm milk and graham crackers. The breakfast was sumptous: pancakes, strawberries, cream and hot cocoa. The girls had a long walk in a bitter wind and by the time they got there they were just about frozen.

So were the pancakes.

Miss Alcott didn't say anything about pancakes getting cold but it stands to reason, I think.

The girls stayed for a while chatting about how cold it was and by the time they left the pancakes were like ice. As it was they didn't stay very long, overwhelmed as they were by the extravagant and tearful gratitude of the poor objects of their charity and besides it was as cold indoors as out.

The fire in the coal stove had long since burned to ashes and there wasn't a cent, not a penny, for a few lumps of coal for a small but cheerful fire to take the chill off and warm over the pancakes. Nor might they, for fear of being dispossessed, chop up the kitchen table or rip up a few floor boards.

After the girls split, the poor family, showing true class but with teeth chattering, breakfasted on chilled fruit, cold pancakes, and iced cocoa laced with frozen cream.

And then the wolves showed up.

It's that kind of fortitude and undaunted willingness to make do that has died out in modern society, and left us all the poorer.

I regret I never finished reading Miss Alcott's classic novel and I don't know whether or not the girls ever went back to see how the poor folks were getting along.

Or even whether they liked the pancakes.

Save Ward 12 from Decay

Dear Editor:

There are people living in the 12th Ward; many of us with families, and we have our needs.

The sidewalk in front of old No. 2 School, the former Ulster County Community College on West Chestnut Street, has been ripped up and has remained that way since late fall. Residents must walk in the street, and many times large muddy puddles caused by the detour require us to walk in the middle of the street.

This problem is compounded by the fact that the old No. 2 School building is apparently being used for storage only. The Kingston Area Library which is being moved out of the 12th Ward could better serve the residents of the Kingston area if it were not moved across town. The area of West Chestnut Street was and still is one of the most beautiful parts of this city. It is still alive and worthy of investment.

It would truly be a tragedy to abandon this part of town!

No Need for Paid 'Volunteers'

WASHINGTON - The President has appointed Sam Brown to be the head of all the government's voluntary programs... Peace Corps, Vista, etc. Sam ought to know how to handle volunteers. As a principal organizer and leader of the anti-war movement, he worked with enough of them.

They ought to remember him with love and respect, for Sam compels admiration for his character as much as for his considerable political talents. But although Sam, who resigns the state treasurership of Colorado, is perfect for the job, there is a further question of whether the job ought to be abolished. What justification, what function can there be in government employes designated as volunteers? How do we fit the notion of a paid volunteer into our mental scheme of things?

As far as the Peace Corps goes - and with all deference to Miz Lillian boiling hypodermic needles in darkest India - the conviction remains in many minds that its main function is espionage, a junior auxiliary CIA.

The domestic peace corps, Vista, is worthless or worse. The kindest thing you can say about it is that it is an altruistic fraud whereby cheap labor can be used without coming into conflict with the government employe unions. In the '60s Vista Vols were accused of mixing in with radical politics to the exasperation of a few big city mayors, but fads change and now no one complains of them about anything.

The government's paid volunteer programs are engineered to support other governmental programs like schooling or quasi-governmental activities like social work or health care. By and large these are also the institutions in our society which are already receiving more money and other kinds of support than they have been able to demonstrate they can effectively use. In fact, the irony is that in many cases the government programs are useless and it is the private, truly volunteer self-help efforts which get the job done insofar as it gets done.

The first example which springs to mind is Alcoholics Anonymous with its hundreds of thousands of members. If the government alcoholic programs were to disappear tomorrow we'd lose little but the amount we pay to support them with our taxes. If AA were to disappear we'd lose the best treatment we have for this disease.

The importance of self-help groups in health care is inestimable. "Literally from the top of your head to your toe, there's a group for almost every organ of the body. These groups are spreading, incidentally, at a time when more money is probably being provided for rehabilitation services than ever before in history," writes Leonard D. Borman, Director of the Self-Help Institute at Northwestern University. "Needless to say, these groups don't seem to benefit from rehabilitation services. We could mention the mastectomy groups, the 'Make Today Count' group for people suffering from terminal cancer. Mended Hearts is growing at two to three hundred members a month, for people that have had heart surgery."

Why, when so many professors and so much tax money go into giving us public programs for every imaginable need, do voluntary self-help groups continue to proliferate in order to cover the same ground? Borman suggests that, "The forms by which services are provided are simply inadequate. When members of Parents Anonymous want to beat their kids, what do they do at two o'clock in the morning? What agency do they call? They feel full of rage. Will they get an appointment in two weeks?"

Even improving the accessibility to the service by staying open around the clock won't work. As Borman points out, most of the time the professionals really don't have any services to offer. They have credentials, but the only persons who seem to be able to help are people who have been through the same pain, the same problem. The credential which counts is experience.

Open to An Ex-Caddy

It was a soggy September. The rich sat on the porch of The Country Club sipping whiskey. They smiled sympathetically as the ex-caddy, Francis Ouimet, yanked his cap down over his eyes and carried a canvas bag around the course.

They called him "boy." He was 20 and shy. He had two woods and six unmatched irons. He wore knickerbockers and a tie. Francis had entered his name in the United States Open. The rich men felt it was out of character.

Day after day he played the three nines - Clyde, Squirrel and Primrose. It was the best course in America, but there were several types of grasses in the fairways, the greens were in tiers. The Country Club in Brookline, Massachusetts, had been designed primarily for tennis courts and a race track.

Some people would come out to watch the Englishmen play. It was their game. The stars would be Harry Vardon, with his new overlapping grip, and Ted Ray, the long-ball hitter.

The men on the porch recalled that they had paid Francis Ouimet 28 cents a round for carrying clubs. Now, in 1913, he had coaxed a 10-year-old schoolboy, Eddie Lowery, to carry his. Francis was becoming bold.

The British were kind to the boy. They stepped aside and saw the frightened expression in his brown eyes, the tension running up his arms. After two rounds, Harry Vardon and Wilfred Reid of England led at 147. Ted Ray and his long, wild hits were two shots back. McDonald Smith and Jim Barnes had 150.

Ouimet was tied with a chubby kid named Walter Hagen at 151. The club members applauded. Their caddy was only four strokes back of the champs. He should quit. He had made his point. Ouimet asked Eddie Lowery if he would remain home from school tomorrow. Eddie nodded.

On the third day the rain was windless and steady. Well-hit balls exploded in water. Francis fired a 74. Vardon and Ray carded 78s. The British began to address the skinny boy. He said "Yes sir" and "No sir."

The members of The Country Club celebrated. By God that youngster showed the English how to putt. On the fourth day they got off the porch to watch. Balls sank in the fairways. Ray came in first with a 79 for a total of 304.

Harry Vardon, grim and irritated, three-putted too many greens. He had a 79 for a two-way tie. Barnes, Hagen, Reid all died on the back nine. Ouimet came to the 13th needing two birdies to tie.

He was 30 yards off the green in two. The skinny kid chipped. The ball fell in for a bird. He parred the long 14th, the 15th and 16th. On the sharp dogleg 17th, Francis hit his best drive and whacked a second shot 20 feet behind the pin.

The crowd choked in silence. Ouimet hit the putt solidly. It ran for the cup, hit the back, bounced up, and dropped in. He had his second birdie. On the 18th, all he required for a tie was a par. He hit a good drive. The rain was in his eyes as he hit an iron to the edge of the green.

He chipped delicately five feet short of the pin. Nobody breathed. The frightened eyes scanned ball to hole. He couldn't take his time. He hit it and sunk it. The American crowd went wild.

Eddie Lowery said he'd plaY hookey. Ouimet thanked him. "It's a wonderful mood," he said. "I'm numb." Vardon and Ray stopped smiling at the boy. They played their hearts out. After nine holes of the playoff, all three were dead even.

The tenth was 140 yards, par 3. Vardon tried too hard. He was short. Ray had too much club. His ball died on the back of the sloppy green. Francis dropped his ball 15 feet from the pin. He missed the putt for a deuce. The British three-putted.

Vardon and Ray seemed to be obsessed with the thought that they could lose to a Yankee caddy. On the par 4 15th, Ray hit an over-the-hill drive so hard he knocked the derby off a spectator.

On the 17th, Harry Vardon hooked his drive into the trees. He hit a wedge onto the fairway, reached the green in three, and two-putted for a bogie. Ouimet decided to test his nerves. He was on in two, and sunk an 18-footer for a birdie.

Ray was out of it. On the 18th, the great Vardon collapsed with a double bogie. Francis was on in two. He two-putted to beat Vardon by five strokes. An Englishman wrote: "When we are old men, children will ask us to tell them again the romantic story of the 20th of September, 1913."

CIA Tries to Plug Its Leaks

WASHINGTON — There has been a quiet but powerful effort to shut the lid on CIA scandals.

Three days after Admiral Stansfield Turner was sworn in as the new CIA chief, he spoke to Attorney General Griffin Bell about plugging leaks. Turner would like to impose criminal sanctions against government officialS who disclose CIA secrets.

On Capitol Hill, Senate Intelligence Chairman Daniel Inouye, D.-Hawaii, told colleagues that he had no inclination to investigate past scandals. His committee had enough to do, he said, just keeping up with current intelligence operations.

The committee unanimously agreed at a secret meeting not to dwell on the CIA's past. "The committee feels it is not possible with the resources available to investigate all past wrongdoings," a spokesman told us.

There is one curious exception to Inouye's disinterest in old CIA skeletons. He directed his staff to proceed cautiously with an investigation of the John F. Kennedy assassination. This was a promise, Inouye explained, that he had made to the Senate.

But competent sources claim Inouye has fallen under the influence of the CIA, which has quietly encouraged him to shut off inquiries into past scandals but to go ahead with a discreet investigation of the Kennedy murder.

The CIA's strategy, according to these sources, is to stymie the House assassination probe. Too close scrutiny of the tragedy might embarrass the CIA, which withheld crucial facts from the Warren Commission. The CIA, therefore, would prefer to shift the investigation to the Senate back burner.

This is merely one manifestation of the CIA's grim, new determination to keep out of the headlines in the future. For the CIA is largely behind the drive to tighten security in Washington.

As a result of this backstage push, both houses of Congress are preparing to take a new look at the secrecy question. There is growing sentiment on Capitol Hill, led by Rep. Charles Bennett, D.-Fla., to give the federal government the power to jail news leakers. President Carter, meanwhile, is trying to limit the number of people who have access to secret documents. There are legitimate secrets, of course, which the government should protect. But invariably, the classification power is used to protect government officials, not to protect the country. It is perilous to enpower those who direct the people's business to decide which facts cannot be divulged, under pain of a prison sentence. We have broken our share of CIA secrets. It might be useful to review a few of them as examples of the secrets that the CIA has sought to hide from the populace: — Back in January, 1971, we revealed that the CIA had recruited Mafia mobsters to knock off Cuba's Fidel Castro. We named the mobsters and their CIA contacts. — We reported in March, 1972, that the CIA had plotted to block leftist leader Salvador Allende from taking power after he was elected president of Chile. — We broke the story in November, 1972, that the CIA, together with the FBI and Secret Service, had been spying on prominent Americans. We quoted from a secret CIA report on singer Eartha Kitt as evidence that the CIA had a strange interest in her sex life.

— In April, 1973, we uncovered the fact that the CIA had attempted to obstruct the FBI investigation of the Watergate scandal. We divulged the following month that White House staff chief H. R. Haldeman had asked the CIA to hamper the investigation.

— We told in May, 1974, of the CIA payoffs to world leaders. We followed with a report that the CIA had also provided visiting leaders with women. Among the recipients of CIA favors, whom we identified, was Jordan's King Hussein.

— In February, 1975, we told of love traps which the CIA operated in New York City and San Francisco to blackmail foreign diplomats. Through hidden one-way mirrors, CIA agents filmed the sexual adventures of the diplomats.

— Not long afterward, we broke the story that the CIA had paid the Howard Hughes organization a fantastic $400 million to recover an obsolete Soviet submarine from the bottom of the Pacific.

We have also written that the CIA has been penetrated by the Soviet KGB; that some CIA station chiefs have taken emoluments from foreign nationals; that the CIA has abetted the operations of foreign secret agents in this country; that CIA operatives have trafficked in opium in Southeast Asia.

These revelations, in our opinion, have never violated security. True, we have embarrassed the CIA. We have caught the CIA playing the same dirty games as the Soviet KGB. The purpose presumably was to enhance U.S. influence around the globe, but the result has been precisely the opposite. It was a mistake, we believe, for the CIA to operate at the KGB level.

•STAMPS

The major problem with the "unfulfilled promise" of food stamps, says the subcommittee, is "maladministration by the state and counties" which leaves large numbers of people either unaware of their eligibility, denied access by red tape, long lines or "other real or perceived barriers to participation."

Assembly figures show the 1.6 million state residents who used food stamps last year poured hundreds of millions into state business — money which the federal government would have spent elsewhere.

If the full potential of the program could be reached it would mean about $600 million in extra business within the state.

But because New York allows its counties to individually administer their own programs, the subcommittee says there are 58 different food stamp operations now running, with each county interpreting the guidelines its own way.

Efforts to determine just how well or poorly Ulster, Sullivan and Greene adhere to the prescribed guidelines proved almost impossible.

The director of each program responded more or less similarly to a list of 12 questions. They all offered walk-in service, complied with 30-day limits to determining eligibility, gave emergency "Authorization To Purchase" (ATP) cards and did the best they could to reach prospective users, they said.

Although no specific comment on county administration was available from the state office in Albany, a spokeswoman indicated Soical Services has alerted all county directors that a comprehensive new handbook on how their program should run will be sent out soon.

"There will be no dramatic difference in the way programs will be run," said Mary Scanlon, "but I can tell you that instead of suggesting guidelines for operation, the state will be setting down solid orders as to how things should go."

Ulster administrator Dolores Whittaker, who also serves as coordinator of the county's outreach program, said she has already set aside staff training time to review the new manual.

Ulster does attempt to bring new participants into the program "to a certain degree," she says. But her job as superintendent of the busy department has to come first.

The main way the program reaches outlying areas is through its seven satellite offices, which are open several hours a day, from one to four days a month, around the county.

This is more than the other to counties offer, but unless someone knows what the hours are, or already has decided to apply for food stamps, the fact that the interviewer is in an area really doesn't mean much.

The county also distributes pamphlets on the program to banks and church groups.

Late last year the Community Action Committee received federal money for a mobile van which drove around the county and tried to reach people with information on the program.

But money ran out, and officials sya there is no way to estimate how many new cases the outreach van netted.

Although the county's official position is that every effort is made to reach prospective participants, government employes say privately there's no real push to spend more tax dollars on the needy, whether they be county, state or federal funds.

"It's difficult to get some kind of objective yardstick on the program," said U.S.D.A. regional spokesman Herbert Strum.

"We hear unofficial reports of these things...of inequities in the administration, but it's never from anyone who's willing to go on the record. It's really up to the state to keep things running the way they should," he said.

Legislation to correct what are seen as unfair parctices in the system will be introduced to the legislature again this year by the Assembly subcommittee on nutrition programs, but similar bill died during the 1976 session, and there is little real hope of success in 1977.

Civil Rights Leader Is Eulogized

RULEVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — Fannie Lou Hamer, one of the early leaders of the civil right movement, was eulogized Sunday as a black woman who helped make it possible for Southerners like President Carter and U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young to be accepted nationwide.

The one-time sharecropper died last Monday at the age of 60 in Mound Bayou Community Hospital. She had been hospitalized for almost two months and had recently undergone a cancer operation.

Police estimated more than 1,600 persons jammed the Ruleville Central High Gymnasium for the memorial service. Burial ceremonies were scheduled for today.

Stokely Carmichael, a one-time black radical leader, said the people came to the services "not because she is Mrs. Hamer, but because she is us — she is the best of us."

Mrs. Hamer was tossed off a Sunflower County plantation because she tried to register to vote.

•LAB

Dr. Roberto Benitez, director of the lab, told the Freeman that he has "one office in the Tumor Clinic building (my own) and some storage room in the attic."

"We have requested the legislature to provide addition space because ou requirements have increase and we have no more room to grow...that request goes back several months," he says.

Sisti has no record of the request and adds there's no more room to give the lab, anyway.

What will Benitez do if the county reclaims its office space?

"It's a great concern to us and we would have to look for an alternative, of course. But it would seriously affect our operation...the one office is mine."

County attorney Abram Molyneaux is searching out the legalities of the issue and the building committee is expected to meet again this Thursday to discuss this and other county agency needs for more space.

•PIKE

Marallo says once Pike submits his new plan, a neighborhood meeting will be held to get input from the individual property owners. The long awaited project will begin at Spring Street and proceed south along Broadway to the former Freeman building.

Although it was widely argued that the original purpose of summer vacations — to allow children time to work on their farms — was no longer valid, the assumption was incorrect for many families, Black said.

"I'm informed by some of the farm communities that it is by no means a dead issue. The young people do go out and help in the fields," said Black.

The chancellor said better energy conservation steps could be taken through the use of a more effective national energy policy.

Kennedy Center Roof Has Leaks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You have a leaky roof that's ruining your house, you get it fixed. Right? Easy for you to say.

When the government tries to fix a leaky roof, a lot of water will flow before the job is done.

The roof in question covers the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, a glistening white structure visited by 5½ million tourists and 1½ million opera, concert and theatergoers each year.

Center spokesman Robert Jackson said 200 leaks now perforate the roof and roof terraces over the 6-year-old building.

As a result, carpeting is rotting in the Concert Hall. Mirrors are tarnishing in the Grand Foyer. Marble in the Hall of States is becoming discolored.

DEAR ABBY

'Open Marriage' Is a Sexual Smorgasbord

DEAR ABBY: You told a woman who was in love with a married man: "Send him home to his wife and children..."

Abby, this is 1977. Why didn't you tell her to ask her married lover to be honest with his wife about her, and try to develop an "open marriage" that would include the girlfriend, too?

A marriage doesn't have to be exclusive to be good. Each of us can love more than one person. Why be hypocritical? If there were fewer "either/or" ultimatums, there would be fewer divorces.

After 28 years of a monogamous marriage, my wife and I decided to "open" our marriage to include others. I now encourage and help my wife to have outside relationships with other men, and she does the same for me with other women. Our open marriage has revitalized us and strengthened our marriage.—OPEN AND HAPPY.

DEAR OPEN: I didn't suggest an "open marriage" because I wouldn't advise anyone to do what I myself wouldn't do. Marriage is (or should be) a sacred covenant between two people, and to "open" it to include others is a violation of that covenant.

It may be possible to love more than one person, but in a civilized society, it's one at a time. The "group" thing, which includes many partners, is not a "love feast"—it's a sexual smorgasbord.

DEAR ABBY: I agree with your comment about the 73-year-old woman signed TALKS TOO MUCH. ("Your son did you a kindness to tell you so.")

However, I have a better way to find out if I'm talking too much. If someone interrupts me, I just keep quiet. And if nobody asks me what I was saying before I was interrupted, I know I've been talking too much.—D.D.J. IN SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

DEAR D.D.J: Hooray for you. Most people would say, "As I was saying..."

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the letter about a sixth grade teacher telling a dirty joke to his class:

I have six children (the youngest in the seventh grade) and have worked as an aide in an elementary school for eight years, and I have a message for parents:

If you dislike something your child tells you happened at school, talk to the teacher. Sometimes a child misunderstands or, unfortunately, lies. If the teacher's explanation doesn't satisfy you, go to the principal.

If it is something serious or dangerous, and you are CERTAIN of your facts, state your concern in writing and send it to the personnel department of your school district.

Get involved; see what is happening at your child's school. But remember, too, that neither your child nor the teacher is perfect.—FOR THE KIDS.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: For the most readable and honest book yet published about Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt, get "My Parents" by James Roosevelt, their oldest son. It's rich in political history and will give you an intimate look at a fascinating family.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

ERMA BOMBECK

Case of a Finicky Eater

A reader vows this is a true story. In her Sunday school class one morning she asked, "And what did the disciples say before they ate the fish?"

A five-year-old boy in the front row waved his hand vigorously and said, "I know. They said, 'These fish got any bones in them?'"

There is every reason to believe this story is true.

Five-year-olds are, without a doubt, the most suspicious diners in this world. They will eat mud (raw or baked), rocks, paste, crayons, ballpoint pens, pillows, moving goldfish, cigarette butts, electrical plugs, soap, cleansing cream, cat food and newspapers.

Try to coax a bit of beef stew into their mouths and they'll give you that look—like the puppy when you stand over him with the Sunday paper rolled up.

I got so much food spit back into my face when my kids were small, I put windshield wipers on my glasses. Then one day my husband said, "How many babies died from malnutrition last year while playing in their food?"

"That's not the point. She doesn't trust me."

"What trust?" he said, "she's a finicky eater."

"She is not finicky. She eats anything — just so long as it isn't on a spoon and my arm isn't attached to it."

"Look, when she gets a little older, she'll change and will probably eat us out of house and home."

He was wrong. She was the only kid in nursery school with her own food taster. My hot dogs never tasted as good as the ones you dipped in watered-down mustard and paid 60 cents for at a football game. My cherry pies never created the excitement of those under heating lamps at the Golden Arches. My pizzas never tasted as wonderful as the cold ones that stuck to the lid of the cardboard box.

One day she said, "Boy, I just had the greatest meal at Kathy's house. Her mother is some cook!"

I raced to the phone. "Helen! What did you have for dinner last night? My daughter raved about it."

"Potato chips and cold cuts."

I try not to overreact. After all, you burn a kid's tongue once when he's 15 months old and he carries a grudge forever. That's what motherhood is all about.

But last year, when she sent Sara Lee a Mother's Day card. That was cruel.

Some courses are for one or two weeks as well as the 10-week intensive course in the culinary arts.

Among the subjects being offered for the first time is Cuisine Minceur, a new development in French cooking pioneered by Chef Michel Guerard. Traditional "haute cuisine" recipes are re-examined with regard to such high calorie, high cholesterol ingredients as cream, butter and flour. The methods taught are built upon classical principles but aim for lighter, more simplified results.

Some of the other subjects will include a one-week course in Ice Carving Made Easy; Buffet Preparation and Garde Manger, Buffets for Profit, Cuisines of the World, Baking and Pastries, Chocolate and Candy Making, Ice Carving, Dining Room Supervision, Bar Management, Business and Industry Food Service Systems, Meat Cutting and Identification, and a Professional Cooks' Skill Development Program.

Courses are taught by members of the institute's faculty of 90 chefs, bakers, maitres d'hotel and operational procedures educators, who have more than 2,000 years of varied food service hospitality experience. All applicants must submit verification from their employer of 2,000 hours of food service experience. Continuing Education students are awarded credits based on class hours toward the Associate Degree in Occupational Studies. Free-lance grantsperson ...a boon to RV School District

By MARGERY MOSSMAN
Freeman staff

ACCORD—The Rondout Valley School District has a secret. His name is Myron (Mike) Kayes and he is doing all he can to keep Rondout Valley schools busy inventing and implementing new educational programs.

Kayes is a man who works at making money grow on trees. The special seeds he plants are in the form of grant proposals, and his saplings are watched and groomed to perfection until the money blossoms.

When and if the grant comes through, Kayes steps back—only to begin work on a new proposal—until the program requires a renewal grant.

The process is not simple, but Kayes is good at it, and, according to superintendent of schools, Dr. James O'Connell, Rondout Valley has benefited greatly from its investment in acquiring the services of the free-lance grantsperson.

Over a year ago, Kayes called and introduced himself to O'Connell, suggesting that perhaps the school district would want to compete for one of 20 educational grants being offered in the State of New York. O'Connell liked the idea and concluded it was a good time to take action against the deficiency Rondout elementary schools were suffering in math. After much testing and research, Kayes developed a grant proposal limiting the projected program to grades K through four and describing each part of the program in detail.

The money the district asked for was mainly to cover the cost of a proposed summer in-service training program for the elementary school teachers. Additional money was routed towards new supplementary materials and testing kits.

Three months after the grant proposal was submitted, it was accepted. What made the success more exciting was the fact that it was the only math education grant given to any school district in the state for 1976-77.

As projected in the proposal, the Rondout elementary teachers got together for a summer workshop and worked to decide exactly what they expected of every math student each year. The result was what is known as a "competency based program." For each step in a child's math education, an expected competency was developed by the teachers. In order for them to tell whether or not a student has actually reached the expected level, they also devised a list of indicators for each competency. This means that teachers in the Rondout district now have the "equipment" to determine exactly where each of their students are having problems. As Wayne Semelmacher, project director for the Basic Skills Math Program, explains, "Teachers now know exactly how to—and where to—zero in on a child's need." Children can be put in groups or work individually under Semelmacher's tutelage rather than being taught by the "shot gun" approach, where every lesn is thrown out to the entire class, regardless of each child's comprehension of the subject.

An important part of this kind of program, and something which is necessary to maintaining a grant, is evaluation. How much a child is benefiting from the Basic Skills Math Program can only be obtained objectively, through testing in September and then again in June. Not only do the results of these tests provide data for the government offices, but they serve as a diagnostic tool for each student. Under Rondout's new program, the children are evaluated on a purely historical basis. The test scores are not compiled by class and judged as a group; nor are they pitted against a national average. Instead, the test scores reveal exactly how much each student has advanced in the past year, and where he or she may be falling behind. "Very few schools know how to use tests," claims school superintendent James O'Connell, "but they are a fantastic tool and a very sophisticated tool."

Now Kayes and Semelmacher are putting together a proposal to continue the grant next year. Their goal is to extend the program through the eighth grade. Like last year, the program would begin with a summer training workshop for a new group of teachers who would evaluate the current project and then go on to develop their own manual of expected competencies and indications. Like last year, too, fund money will be used to purchase more materials for use in classrooms and for tutoring. Semelmacher would also like to be able to hire consultants, especially in the area of staff development. "We'll plant the seeds," he says, "give them the tools to work with."

Meanwhile, Kayes is also busy working up other proposals for the school district. At the top of his current list is a project he calls "Renaissance in Rondout." If approved, government funding would provide an overall comprehensive arts program geared towards exposing students to a variety of the fine arts by bringing performing companies and guest artists to the schools.

Kayes has also submitted a proposal for a Basic Skills Writing Program that would operate much like the math program now underway.

O'Connell hopes that plans can also be drawn up for a grant to enlarge the district's career education department, which would include career-oriented alternative education.

Another program O'Connell foresees is one to provide continuing education for the district's adult population. Preparing for high school equivalency exams would be the program's main objective, because, the superintendent explains, "Almost half of Ulster County residents over age 25 don't have a high school diploma."

In the past, government grants have made it possible for the Rondout School District to provide a Migrant Education Program and day care for young children of migrant families during the summer.

Kayes sees grants as one of the only ways a school district can make necessary curriculum improvements now that adequate money for education is no longer available through property taxes alone. He feels that routing sales or income tax towards education would be far more sensible, but until that time comes, educators must rely on grants and creative changes within the present school system.

Poison Prevention Week Designated March 20-26

KINGSTON—March 20 to 26 is designated by the President as National Poison Prevention Week this year. Poison prevention is important all year, but observance of this week focuses the attention of local communities on the dangers of accidental poisonings and encourages preventive measures.

There are a number of housekeeping rules that can be observed to prevent poisoning accidents. Keep all household products and medicines out of reach of youngsters. When these products are in use, they should never be out of sight of adults—even if it involves the adults taking them along when answering the telephone or the doorbell.

Items should be kept in their original containers—never in cups or soft drink bottles. Each product should be properly labeled before using it. Never take any medication in the dark.

Children tend to imitate adults, so parents should avoid taking any medications in front of young children, and be very careful not to refer to "medicine" as "candy."

The medicine cabinet should be cleaned out periodically, and unused medicines should be disposed of when the illness for which they were prescribed is over. Finally, safe packing should be used properly by closing the container securely after use.

A significant number of children have been poisoned by accidentally ingesting hazardous household products— including medicines. The safety containers are an additional feature in providing protection. The law requires that aspirin be packaged in special containers that would make it difficult for 80 per cent of those children tested to open the container. It is then conceivable that two children out of 10 might be able to open the container. To safegrard even these two, constant diligence and strict following of poison prevention measures should be observed.

In 1974, the last year for which complete figures are available, fatalities among children from causes due to poisoning declined 30 per cent over 1972, the year safety packaging took effect. For aspirin, the first product to be so regulated, this decline was 48 per cent over the same period. According to the National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers: "For the first time since these annual tabulations have been reported, aspirin fell from the top of the list."

Lead in paints can also be a serious problem if it is ingested. In past, paints could—and did—contain much higher levels of lead. However, since Jan. 1974, paints have been limited in lead content by law. This order has also applied to any child's toy or article which is coated with paint or any similar material. Today, children still run the risk of lead poisoning if they habitually pick at and eat the flakes of paint from old, deteriorating, painted surfaces. Workers and entire families face the same hazard when older homes and other buildings are restored and sanding raises dust as leaded paint is removed from inner surfaces such as walls, floors and ceilings.

For more information on poison prevention, a list of materials for available resources and their sources of supply can be obtained from Secretary, National Planning Council for National Poison Prevention Week, P.O. Box 1543, Washington, D.C. 20013.

25 Years Ago Today

Honorable mention selections include Frank Koenig and Pete Camp of KHS... Diver Phil Metzger of Kingston was one of the outstanding members of the Union College swim team this season.

10 Years Ago Today

March 21, 1952...Fred Seither was elected president of the Mid-Hudson Valley Wrestling Officials Association...Joe Uhl was held to 22 points and Hub Delicatessan was kayoed in the first round of the 24th annual Hudson Valley basketball tournament by South Fallsburgh, 86-78...40-year-old pitcher Lew Burdette is in the spring training camp of the California Angels... The KHS basketball team set three records during this past season: an average offense of 80 points, more than 100 points scored on four occasions and three championships in one season.

Sports Roundup

BASEBALL...

In exhibition games Sunday, right-handed pitchers Rick Rhoden and Burt Hooton combined on a five-hit shutout to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-0 victory over the New York Mets in the Dominican Republic. Manny Mota hit a two-run homer for the Dodgers ... Wayne Garrett and Del Unser each hit two-run home runs to spark the Montreal Expos to an 8-6 win over the Houston Astros... Buck Martinez had three hits, including a two-run homer, to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 9-7 triumph over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Jeff Burroughs, hitting safely in his 10th straight game, drove in a run with a double to spark a three-run first inning that helped the Atlanta Braves defeat the Texas Rangers 5-3.

National League Cy Young award winner Randy Jones, who underwent arm surgery after last season, went five innings for the first time this spring, giving up three run in the San Diego Padre 9-7 loss to the Cleveland Indians ... Outfielder Bob Gorinski hit a three run homer and had a run scoring triple Sunday to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 10-7 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The Pittsburgh Pirates Sunday said relief pitcher Dave Giusti had given them permission to trade his contract to the Oakland A's. Because Giusti, 37, is a 10-year veteran who has been with the same team for at least five years, he had to give his consent to the trade. He was part of a nine-player trade negotiated last Wednesday by the Pirates and A's.

TENNIS...

Martina Navratilova was looking towards the $100,000 Virginia Slims of Philadelphia tournament to build her confidence. But Chris Evert had other ideas.

Top-seeded Evert defeated her Sunday 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 to win the championship after trying for three years.

Evert was last year's runnerup to Evonne Goolagong, and to Virginia Wade in 1975...

Brian Gottfried just wants to enjoy the tennis he's playing these days, not analyze it.

"I don't know," the 24-yearold winner of the $100,000 Volvo Classic replied when asked why he's playing so well this year with three tour stop championships thus far. "I'm not sure I want to know why."

He pocketed the $20,000 first prize money Sunday with a brisk, 6-1, 6-2 triumph over Bob Lutz that required only 59 minutes.

The third-seeded Gottfried never lost service and broke his sixth-seeded opponent twice in each set to gain the one-sided victory...

Jimmy Connors, often brash and outspoken, revealed a softer side of himself before his hometown fans Sunday.

Connors had just won the $100,000 St. Louis Tennis Classic by defeating John Alexander, 76, 6-2. He accepted a check for $30,000 from Mayor John Poelker. He then took the public address system and thanked the crowd for its enthusiastic support.

SKIING...

Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden is eager to win the season's two remaining World Cup giant slalom competitions although he's already clinched the overall title for the second consecutive year.

Stenmark's slalom victory Sunday put him a secure 61 points ahead of Austrian Klaus Heidegger in the overall standings with only the two races remaining this season.

Capturing his 14th slalom title in his three-year World Cup career, the 21-year-old Swede broke the previous record of 13 World Cup slalom wins held by Frenchman Jan-Moel Augert.

"I also hope I can win the special giant slalom competition inside the World Cup," Stenmark said.

Swiss Olympic champion Heini Hemmi leads the giant slalom standings but is out for the rest of the season because of a back problem.

RACING...

Long distance races often are locked up a long time before they're over and the 12 Hours of Sebring looked like a runaway for Peter Gregg and Jim Busby.

They were taking turns at the wheel of a Turbo Porsche 934 and, after almost eight hours of flawless performance, they had built up a comfortable lead of nearly 30 miles Saturday night.

The comfort was shattered when a wheel came off the sleek white machine that had seemed unbeatable. And it wound up getting beat.

George Dyer and Brad Frisselle, a pair of 28-year-old Californians, grabbed the lead in their

Bonnies Upstage Houston in NIT

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a theatrical peformance it would have been called an upstaging. Otis Birdsong was cast in the leading role, but at the end he was merely a star. The All America guard from Houston was shoved aside at center stage by an unknown.

Greg Sanders became the center of attention in the 40th National Invitation Tournament by scoring 40 points and grabbing a game high 12 rebounds to spark St. Bonaventure to a 94-91 victory over Houston Sunday in the NIT final. The performance earned Sanders the NIT's Most Valuable Player award.

Birdsong was almost as spectacular for Houston, getting 38 points. But the 6-foot-4 guard tired in the last few minutes and couldn't prevent the Bonnies' rally from a 10-point deficit. and his brother, Larry, added 20 to lead Villanova to a 102-89 triumph over Alabama.

UPI photo

Essie Hollis (25) hits a jumper

Sanders' 25-foot jump shot gave St. Bonaventure the lead for good with just more than a minute to play and Glenn Hagan and Tim Waterman sank key foul shots in the last minute to seal the victory.

"The key shot was that thing Sanders took that he really shouldn't have taken," Bonnies' Coach Jim Satilin said of the basket that put his team ahead 88-87 with 1:03 left. "I suppose since he has such a good touch it was about the best shot we could get. But when it went up ... AAAGH! It was one of those, 'No, no, no ... YEAH!' shots."

It was also the final basket for Sanders, who made 14 of 23 shots from the field and 12 of 16 from the free throw line. The 6-foot-6 junior forward from Washington, D.C. finished the tournament with 104 points in four games.

"If I had missed I wasn't going to look at Coach," Sanders said. "I'm very proud that we won. I think the guys were great at the free throw line at the end, especially Hagan."

Following Sanders' long basket, Hagan increased the Bonnies' lead to 90-87 by converting both ends of a oneand-one foul situation. Houston's Ken Williams cut the deficit to 90-89 with 25 seconds to play, but Williams then missed a 12-foot jumper that would have put the Cougars ahead.

Waterman, a 6-foot-9 center, grabbed the rebound and was fouled by Cecile Rose with 15 seconds left, making one of two foul shots. On the missed shot, however, Hagan, a 6-foot-1 junior guard, grabbed the rebound, was fouled and sank one of two free throws for a 92-89 lead. Hagan finished with 14.

Birdsong scored with two seconds remaining to pull Houston within one point, but Essie Hollis scored at the buzzer to clinch the Bonnies' first NIT title in nine tries. St. Bonaventure's best previous finish was third in 1952, 1958 and 1971.

SPORTS TODAY

"We felt we were in good position when we pressed them," said Houston Coach Guy Lewis. "After that, we stopped playing with as much hustle and enthusiasm. Their guy Sanders is a tremendous player and he surprised me with his rebounding ability."

"Birdsong got tired in the last five or six minutes," Satilin said. "That was the difference."

Birdsong, who was the NIT's top scorer with 116 points, made the all-tournament team along with Sanders, Hollis, Villanova's Keith Herron and Alabama's T.R. Dunn.

"I took a couple of bad jump shots and missed a lot of easy shots in the second half," Birdsong said. "I feel very frustrated and very down."

St. Bonaventure, 24-6, beat Rutgers, Oregon and Villanova to reach the title game with Houston. The Cougars finished their season with a 29-8 record.

In the game for third place, Keith Herron scored 35 points

Catskill Sweeps All Star Tourney

In the Junior division, Catskill defeated Kingston, 73-62. Catskill dropped Esopus, 51-40, to grab the Biddy title as well. In the consolation games, Esopus topped Saugerties, 66-57, in the Junior game, and Kingston drubbed Saugerties, 70-43, in the Biddy contest.

Catskill's Junior victory was led by John Pilatich with 23 points. Joe Szeppesy added 14 and Gene Harris 13. Gene Burris scored 38 points to pace Kingston and wound up with 74 points in the two games.

Catskill took a 15-7 lead after one quarter and led, 37-23, after halftime. Kingston did manage to outscore Catskill in the fourth, 18-9.

Mark Swain pumped in 16 points to lead the Catskill Biddy squad to its win and both Dave Simms and John Chetti netted seven. Bob McDonald led Esopus with nine and Dan Miller had eight. As in the Junior finale, Catskill outscored its opponent in each of the first three quarters.

In the Junior division consolation, Esopus posted a 21-13 fourth-quarter edge to expand its one-point lead after three quarters to its nine-point win. George Wenzel scored 23, John Ossmer 12 and Frank Blaha 10 for Esopus while Saugerties was led by Dave Parisi'a 13 and Jim Spiers 11.

Ken Neal netted 20 and Mike Mahoney 15 to drive Kingston over Saugerties in the Biddy consolation. Jeff Dodig led Saugerties with 13. Kingston led, 42-32, after three quarters, but exploded for 28 points in the final quarter.

Watson's Woes Gave Hayes Ideas

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (UPI) — Mark Hayes didn't give serious thought to winning the Tournament Players Championship until playing partner Tom Watson started coming unglued.

Watson was coasting along with a two-stroke lead before he ran into a bogey streak, four out of five holes, three in a row.

"That was the first time I thought I was in good shape," said Hayes, who won the $300,000 tournament by two strokes. His par 72 in the final round for a 289 total that was 12 strokes higher than any previous 72-hole winning score on the PGA tour this year.

"Suddenly, everything Tom hit started going the wrong way," he said. "I was just trying to make pars, and the birdies came."

The 27-year-old Oklahoman, who picked up $60,000 and a 10-year exemption for Sunday's victory, was never ahead until the 68th hole of the tournament, when he ran in a 12-foot birdie putt. That was the same hole where Watson had his third straight bogey, and Hayes led the rest of the way in.

Mike McCullough, who led the first three rounds after opening with a 66 on Thursday, birdied the final hole Sunday for a 75-291. That was good for second place and $34,200.

"The leader board had Mac at 4 over, which was wrong," said Hayes, who also birdied the final hole. "I'm glad it didn't make any difference. I hate to finish trying to play it safe. That's when you make double bogey."

Hayes won the Byron Nelson Classic, the Pensacola Open and nearly $152,000 last year, his fourth year on the tour. But he had won less than $12,000 this year with no finish higher than his tie for 15th at San Diego.

Hayes had predicted that it probably wouldn't take a very low score to win here, that "everybody's going to back up and keep backing up."

He was right. The wind, that was up to 40 miles per hour on Friday, gusted at better than 30 Sunday over the oceanside Sawgrass course east of Jacksonville, Fla.

"I thought it would take even par to win," said Hayes. "But, I never did feel like I had it made. Watson does not have a reputation for backing up."

Watson, this year's No. 2 money winner with more than $110,000, skied to a 77 Sunday. That put him at 293, a stroke behind Hale Irwin (74) and Bruce Devlin (72) and tied with Jack Nicklaus (74), who won the TPC in 1974 and 1976, and Australian Graham Marsh, who now has four top 10 finishes in his first year on the U.S. tour.

Bill Rogers, Steve Melnyk and Larry Nelson were at 294 and Tom Weiskopf and Peter Oosterhuis of England were at 295. The only golfer to break 70 Sunday was Rex Caldwell who finished at 69-297.

J.C. Snead, runnerup to Nicklaus the two years he won the TPC, had 76-296 where he was tied with Masters champ Ray Floyd (78) and South Africa's Gary Player (72). Arnold Palmer was never a factor here, finishing 75-302.

Spinks Wants Stevenson

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — If U.S. Olympic light heavyweight champion Leon Spinks had his way, his next pro fight would be with Cuba's Teofilo Stevenson, the 1972 and 1976 Olympic heavyweight champ.

"There's a standing offer of $1 million waiting for Stevenson any day Castro says he'll let him fight me," said Spinks after knocking out Jerry McIntyre, of Killeen, Tex., in the first 35 seconds of their nationally televised six-round bout Sunday.

Spinks, a 23-year-old recently discharged Marine from St. Louis, declared, "Stevenson doesn't impress me."

"Stevenson's got a good right, but that's about all," Spinks said. "I've been told he doesn't want any part of me. If we ever fought, I'd be glued to him like a wet T-shirt. He wouldn't have any place to hide."

In his third fight since turning pro as a heavyweight, the ex-Marine gave a national TV audience very little opportunity to see his Olympic championship form as he decked his flabby opponent for the count with his first flurry of heavy punches.

So widespread is Spinks' reputation as a murderous puncher that the 195-pound fighter may have increasing difficulty in getting worthy opponents if this card was any indication. McIntyre took the bout on short notice after the original opponent and two substitutes had withdrawn.

Howard Davis, another Olympic gold medal winner at Montreal last summer, had to work a little longer than Spinks. He stiffened Rick Craney of Portland, Maine, with a lightning combination at 135 of the third round of their scheduled six-round lightweight go.

Craney, sporting a bushy blond mustache but very little weaponry, was so ecstatic about lasting one round with the classy New Yorker that he threw his hands up in the air in a victory salute gesture at the end of the opening round.

Before polishing off Craney, Davis threw in some Muhammad Ali antics to the delight of the nearly 1,000 spectators in the heavyweight champion's hometown. He did an imitation of the famed Ali shuffle and also wound up his right arm windmill style the way Ali does on occasion to entertain a fight crowd.

In a third TV tussle, 260pound Lee Canalito, a former star tackle for the University of Houston, finished off Bill Jackson of Indianapolis in just 2:05 of the first round with a right uppercut. It was only the second pro fight for Canalito, a protege of Ali's trainer, Angelo Dundee.

'Dead' Rangers Win A Reprieve

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Rangers, who appeared "dead" a week ago, have won themselves a reprieve in the race for the third and last playoff berth in the National Hockey League's Patrick Division.

Even John Ferguson, their hard-to-please coach, was satisfied Sunday night when the Rangers scored four goals in the third period to beat the St. Louis Blues 5-3. The victory was the second in 24 hours for the Rangers and moved them to within five points of third-place Atlanta.

The Rangers have only six games to play and the odds are all in favor of the Flames winning the playoff berth. But the unpredictable Ferguson chose to be hopeful after the Rangers' two-victory weekend.

"We know what we have to do," he said. "We can be right back into it by the beginning of next week. We're down by five but they play Buffalo next. The schedule is in our favor."

Rick Bourbonnais scored at 5:36 of the third period giving the Blues a 3-2 lead but then Mike McEwen, Ron Greschner and Pat Hickey tallied for the Rangers within a 3:03 span and the Rangers hung on for the victory. McEwen tied the score at 9:07, Greschner followed with his goal at 11:01 and Hickey added the game-clincher at 12:10.

"We played a pretty good defensive hockey game during the first two periods," exulted Ferguson. "Our defensemen laid it on their forwards pretty good. Then we started to outskated them in the third period. That heavy work by our defensemen gave Greschner and McEwen the opportunity to really sail in the third period."

Ferguson ducked the issue when advised St. Louis Coach Emile Francis "didn't think much of the officiating" in the game. He couldn't resist the opportunity to remind his players, however, that they'll never have enough steel in them to satisfy him completely.

Sabres 6, Capitals 2

All will be forgiven Gil Perreault if he can lead the Buffalo Sabres' late battle for first place in the National Hockey League's Adams Division.

Perreault is the first to admit he didn't play well during the first half of the season. But he says he's recaptured his touch and he has been the key player in the Sabres' effort to stay ahead of the Boston Bruins in the race for first place in that division.

Perreault scored two goals Sunday when the Sabres defeated the Washington Capitals 6-2 and took a two-point lead over the idle Bruins.

"I wasn't playing too well at the beginning of the season," admitted Perreault after Sunday's game. "I don't know why; I guess I was just in a slump.

"But now I'm skating and shooting well," added Perreault, who has now scored 37 goals. "Everything is coming back."

Barons 5, Flames 4

Dennis Maruk, Al MacAdam and Bob Murdoch scored two of Cleveland's goals as the Barons dealt the Flames a loss that cost them two points in their fight with the Rangers for the third and final playoff spot in the Patrick Division. The Barons took a 3-0 lead in the first period and then held off a late charge by the muscular Flames, who now lead the Rangers by five points.

Black Hawks 3, Penguins 2

Grant Mulvey scored on a third-period breakaway to snap a 2-2 tie and send Chicago past Pittsburgh. The Hawks' victory ended a nine-game winless streak and enabled them to maintain their one-point secondplace lead over Minnesota in the Smythe Division. Goalie Tony Esposito stopped 37 shots for Chicago.

North Stars 2, Wings 1

Minnesota's Ernie Hicke assisted on one goal and scored another to hand Detroit its 47th loss of the season and extend its winless streak to 11 games. The winning goal came on a two-on-one break with Tim Young scoring at 19:43 of the second period.

Canucks 4, Rockies 1

Two goals by Ron Sedlbauer Vancouver, which is tied with the Stars in their struggle for the last playoff spot in the Symthe Division. Cesar Manago starred in the nets for the Canucks. Vancouver's Dennis Kearns, who played in his 400th NHL game, had an assist for his 200th career point.

WHA

Ulf Nilsson's goal 35 seconds into overtime gave the Winnipeg Jets a 4-3 decision over the Birmingham Bulls...Goalie Ron Grahame set a WHA record by winning his 12th game in a row as the Houston Aeros tallied six goals in the third period for an 8-3 romp over the Indanapolis Racers...John McKenzie scored three goals to lead the New England Whalers to a 9-0 triumph over the Calgary Cowboys...Andre Lacroix registered a goal and three assists and Ernie Wakely turned aside 25 shots as the San Diego Mariners snapped a 14game winless string with a 6-1 win over the Phoenix Roadrunners.

Lyle Decisions Bugner

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — On the heels of Jimmy Young's stunner over former heavyweight champion George Foreman, 35-year-old Ron Lyle has thrust himself back into the title picture.

An 8-5 underdog, the brawny ex-convict from Denver scored a bruising, split decision victory over European champion Joe Bugner, the No. 4-rated heavyweight from of Britain, in a 12-rounder Sunday.

After his victory, the seventh-ranked Lyle replied to those who told him he was too old to still be ranked as a top contender.

"That would be like me telling Howard Cosell he's too old to be a broadcaster," he said sharply. "I paid my dues to the critics of boxing. Now I want to reap the benefits."

Lyle entered the ring coming off a knockout loss at the fists of Foreman, the former champion, and a 12-round decision defeat to Young at San Francisco last Nov. 6. He improved his record to 35-4-1.

Young, who upset Foreman in a 12-rounder at Puerto Rico Thursday night, also decisioned Lyle in February, 1974, at Honolulu.

"I would like to have my next fight in Madison Square Garden," he noted. "That's the fight capital of the world.

"I'd like to fight Young again. He's in a position where he doesn't have to look at me. But if Young says he wants to fight me tomorrow, I'll fight in his front room."

Lyle pursued Bugner from the opening bell and won the nods from judges Hal Miller 57-52 and Harold Buck 56-54 while the third judge, Art Lurie, favored Bugner 55-54.

French Voters Step Left

PARIS (UPI) — A Communist-Socialist alliance h]s won control of a majority of French cities with stunning election gains that could foreshadow a leftist victory in the 1978 parliamentary elections.

The Communist-Socialist wins in Sunday's local elections threaten to widen a split within the center-right coalition that put President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in power over how to avert an end to its 20-year rule.

Giscard suffered another defeat when his ha dpicked candidate for Paris mayor, Industry Minister Michael d'Ornano, lost to former Premier Jacques Chirac, a Gaulist leader who split recently with the president.

Chirac's 48 seats in the 109seat city council will make him Paris' first mayor in more than a century.

Incomplete reports showed the leftist election landslide, larger than most experts had predicted, swept 156 of France's 221 major cities. The left also won the popular vote, 52 per cent to 46 per cent.

The Communist-Socialist alliance also beat five members of Giscard's cabinet who ran in local elections. Sunday's balloting was in those cities where no candidates won a majority in the first round of voting March 13.

Giscard, who beat Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand by only 1 per cent in the 1974 presidential election, has since seen the left beat his forces in the 1976 cantonal elections and a string of parliamentary byelections.

Leftist leaders greeted their gains with unconcealed glee, while leaders of Giscard's coalition urged an effort to heal their internal split in time to avert a leftist sweep of the 1978 elections.

"These results show that the majority is collapsing," Mitterrand said. Pierre Mauroy, another top Socialist, called it "the beginning of the end for this regime that has ruled for 20 years."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

TUESDAY, MARCH 22

Your birthday today: You face reality you've not seen clearly before, can do something constructive about unsatisfactory features. This year you finalize important personal commitments, achieve a base for future operations. Relationships survive if interest is mutual; it takes both parties. Today's natives have humor, a knack for getting right to the core of issues. Those born this year will dedicate their income to social causes, need early training in the use of money.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Echoes of past episodes pop up. Youngsters in general demand attention. Urges to splurge clash with budget limits plus the need to cover an unusual outlay.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): In coping with increased work, remember you're digressing from tradition, blazing a new trail. Personal plans get sidetracked in the rush or are premature.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You must say or do things you hoped to avoid. Keep it brief, give others a fair chance to respond. You're on your own where you usually have support.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Leisure moments are short, should be devoted to personal welfare. Loved ones' remarks hit on sore spots of your own making. Do better, no recriminations.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Healthy self-interest gives you leverage to help others. Progress is blocked by people coming to terms with themselves. Don't let your pride hold them back.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Say "no" and mean it. Refuse to take on too much or to do it for less than it's worth. Stay close to home, watch local events, attend to symptoms promptly.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Beware high-powered sales pitches, sudden bargains. Be tight with money, offer no excuses. Stick with previous plans; people depend on you for a firm stand.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Step out of the middle when others fight. You're sure what you want, can afford to ride out crosscurrents. Don't answer comments immediately, if at all.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pass off stress cheerfully, keep up appearances in public, malice toward none. Overlook somebody's failure to advance beyond narrow limits of habit.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stay in control of the sequence of major action. Allow an extra day to untangle problems. You may yet stumble on a solution that makes all the difference.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stop worrying. Just do your best to alleviate tension among companions, family. Recognize human failings like jealousy for what they are. Forgive, forget.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): A slow day offers an opportunity to repair yesterday's misguided notions and their effects. Romance is a will-o'-the-wisp, so near, yet so far, intriguing.

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

MOTHER: (Q.) My mom and this man are living together and he has a 16-year-old son. I know it's wrong, but I HATE both of them because ever since they came to stay with us she has not done one thing to me but fuss.

I come in my room so I won't have to listen to her, but she follows me and starts fussing at me. She calls me stupid when I try to talk to her about this. She also says all my friends, who do not like her now, are bad girls. I think she's the bad one. HELP — Mated in South Carolina.

A.) You are having a bad time. But so is your mother. She is under stress. So are you. You are adding to her stress by condemning her for the way she is living. She is adding to your stress by passing some of her troubles on to you.

Try to forgive her in your heart. This is a very big thing and you will have to be very big to do it. Stop, if you can, thinking of her as bad. Think of all the good things she is.

If you can forgive her, you can also forgive her friend and his son. In doing so, you can free yourself from the anger you are carrying around. You can also talk calmly to your mother about marriage.

Marriage would solve a lot of your problems. Your mother would feel better and you would feel better and your friends would feel better. Her friend would also probably feel better and so would his son.

ACTION: (Q.) I had known this guy Glen a long time. He works in a grocery store. I go there two to three times a week, and sometimes twice in one day if I forget something.

When he saw me he said "Hi" to me and when I left he would make eyes at me. But that was all. So I got him a Valentine card — just a friendly one. I put my phone number on it and gave it to him.

He called me and now we go out together. But some of my friends say I shouldn't have done it. Do you think I did wrong? Is it all right for a girl to make some of the moves? — Glad in Wisconsin.

(A.) Girls often have to make a move these days, and I do not condemn it if it is honest and open and clean. Yours was.

It was also timely — tied as it was to a very special day.

There is another special day a girl can choose for sending the word to a boy — his birthday.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

SOME BRIDGE EXPERTS BELIEVE IN BOGY MAN

by Alfred Sheinwold

Most of the bridge experts scheduled to play in the North American Championships this week at the Pasadena Convention Center look grown-up. Don't you believe it. Some of them still believe in the bogy man.

When today's hand was played in a tournament some years ago, Los Angeles expert Jack Ehrlenbach conjured up a bogy man that robbed South of his slam.

West opened the ace of hearts, and Ehrlenbach played the king of hearts from the East hand.

"Clever, but useless," you mutter.

West naturally continued with the jack of hearts, and declarer ruffed in dummy with the queen of spades.

When East produced a heart at the second trick South realized that he had been hornswoggled into wasting dummy's queen of trumps. Why? What did East have in mind?

DRAWS CONCLUSION

After some thought East came to the conclusion that Ehrlenbach had the three missing trumps and was hoping to get a trump trick. This hung together with West's opening bid and with East's fancy play at the first trick.

So declarer led the seven of spades from dummy and let it ride for a finesse!

West took the setting trick with his singleton jack of spades, and South still looks under the bed every night.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: ♠ A K 9 8 4 3 2 ♡ Q 3 ◇ K J 5 ♣ 3. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade. Don't bid a shutout bid when you have ample strength for a normal opening bid of one. You may have a slam, and the player you shut out may well be your partner.

North Slope Oil Needs Price Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The flow of oil from the Alaskan North Slope is imminent enough that economists are trying to determine how much it should cost.

Government planners seek a price formula that will spur Alaskan production while keeping the cost below foreign oil prices. Oil from the North Slope is due to start gushing through the pipeline within the next six months, adding a degree of urgency to the decision.

The Federal Energy Administration has scheduled public hearings this week in Washington, San Francisco and Anchorage to accept suggestions on how to calculate the oil price.

FEA officials must balance such complex factors as arctic drilling investments, transportation charges, existing price structures and the estimated time before Alaskan oil gluts the West Coast market.

Agency figures show a range of potential prices, depending on the formula, from $4 to almost $12 at the well and from $10 to more than $20 at refineries on the West Coast, on the Gulf Coast and in the Midwest.

FEA experts hope to set a final price by June.

Crude oil from the North Slope is expected to reach the West Coast in September at the rate of 600,000 barrels a day, increasing to 2 million barrels daily in the 1980s.

Present domestic oil prices are determined by a federal formula averaging the fixed low price of "old" oil and the floating higher price of "new" oil from wells drilled in the past four years. The maximum price for new oil is about $11 a barrel.

Foreign oil transported to the West Coast costs $13 to $15.

With an Alaska pipeline charge of about $5, plus a tanker fee of 76 cents a barrel and overland transportation fees from West Coast ports to refineries, "a wellhead price for Alaskan crude of about $7.50 to $8 per barrel apparently would permit the price to the (U.S.) refinery ... to be roughly equivalent to the import price," the FEA said.

The problem with that plan, the agency said, is that refineries are entitled to a U.S. government subsidy for each barrel of foreign oil they buy. If the basic cost of foreign and Alaskan oil were equal, it said, refiners would prefer to buy foreign oil and profit from the subsidy.

"Thus, to remain competitive, the Alaskan production would either have to bear an even lower wellhead price — perhaps $6 to $6.75 per barrel, and as low as $4 to $4.75 per barrel for Alaskan production destined for Gulf Coast and Midwest refineries — or Alaskan production would have to be treated as imported crude oil," the FEA said.

"We're going to have a hard time setting a price everyone will be happy with," one official said.

Sellers Feeling Better

LONDON (UPI) — Actor Peter Sellers, stricken by possible food poisoning on a flight from France, was kept under observation today in a London hospital but his bride of one month said he was feeling fine and "cracking jokes."

Sellers, 51, collapsed Sunday on the Air France Boeing 727 taking him and his 22-year-old fourth wife, British actress Lynne Frederick, home from their honeymoon in the south of France.

"Peter is sitting up in bed, drinking a cup of tea and cracking jokes," Mrs. Sellers told reporters at Charing Cross hospital Sunday night.

"He's wondering what happened to him, but he feels fine now.

"He has definitely not got another heart attack. We both had bad tummies after eating oysters. It may be a touch of food poisoning."

She said Sellers would probably remain in the hospital until Tuesday.

The actor has a history of heart trouble and in 1964 suffered a serious heart attack in Hollywood.

A doctor traveling on the plane aided Sellers and an ambulance was waiting on the tarmac as the plane landed at Heathrow airport.

Remains Back on American Soil

Names Being Verified

HONOLULU (UPI) — Military technicians are working "round the clock" to verify the identities of the remains of 12 American servicemen who died in the Vietnam war so they can be shipped to their families as soon as possible.

An Air Force C141 brought the remains home to the United States late Saturday after a special presidential commission took possession of them in Hanoi.

The remains were in boxes when given by the Vietnamese to the U.S. delegation, but they were transferred to silver caskets before their arrival at Hickam Air Force Base.

The Vietnamese identified the airmen last September, but military officials said they would check the remains and make their own official identifications.

John Rogers, civilian chief of the Central Identification Laboratory at Fort Armstrong, said his staff was working "round the clock."

If the identifications are made and a military review board in Washington, concurs with the CIL's findings, Rogers said, the remains would be flown to the Oakland, Calif., Army mortuary for processing before being returned to the aviators' families.

The Vietnamese identified the dead servicemen as:

Navy Capt. Roy H. Bowling, San Bernardino, Calif.; Air Force Lt. Col. Elwyn R. Capling, Detroit; Air Force Maj. Stephen W. Diamond, Roslyn Heights, N.Y.; Air Force Lt. Bruce Ducat, Bethesda, Md.; Air Force Maj. Curtis A. Eaton, Wakefield, R.I.; Air Force Capt. Lawrence H. Goldberg, Cloquet, Minn.

Also, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Guy D. Johnson, Seattle; Navy Lt. William B. Klenert, Bellmore, N.Y.; Navy Cmdr. Thomas C. Kolstad, Parkville, Minn.; Air Force Maj. James H. Metz, Poplar Bluff, Mo.; Navy Capt. William M. Roark, Bellevue, Neb.; Air Force Capt. Samuel E. Walters Jr., Mocksville, N.C.

Omens Look Good

Carter, Fukuda Talking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter and Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda planned to seek mutual ways to ease world security and economic problems during two days of talks.

The 73-year-old Fukuda is the first Asian leader to visit the new President. He arrived in Washington Sunday and was to be greeted officially on the White House South Lawn today.

Heading the agenda for their two rounds of talks are trade problems — particularly the record $5.36-billion U.S. trade deficit with Japan — and security issues, including the timetable for withdrawal of U.S. ground forces from South Korea.

Omen-conscious Japanese officials were happy with the special welcome that nature provided Fukuda on arrival here late Sunday after an overnight stay in Seattle.

As Fukuda's plane landed at Andrews Air Force base in suburban Maryland, drenching rains halted abruptly and a red, round sun — the Japanese national symbol — shone for 10 minutes before the clouds returned.

The officials also noted that Japanese cherry trees, given as a goodwill gesture earlier this century, were in full bloom within view of the White House.

Carter and Fukuda hoped to agree on ways to stimulate the recession and inflation plagued global economy. Fukuda apparently agrees with Carter's belief America and Japan must lead the way by reviving their own economies.

"Unless the United States, Japan, West Germany and other nations can recover, the whole world economy will decline," Fukuda told reporters during a Saturday stopover in Seattle.
